Your Logo Here

Generated: 10 October 2026 at 18:21
Period: 17 August 2026 — 06 October 2026
Harlow & Finch Ltd

Profit & Loss Statement

For the period 17 August 2026 to 06 October 2026

AI-Assisted Draft: This document was prepared using AI assistance and data sourced from Xero. All figures should be independently verified before distribution or filing.

Income

Category	Amount
Loan Receipt	£28,000.00
Sales	£12,500.00
Other Revenue	£4,200.00
Total Income	£44,700.00

Expenses

Category	Amount
Wages & Salaries	(£9,800.00)
Employer NIC Payable	(£7,200.00)
Legal Expenses	(£6,500.00)
VAT	(£5,600.00)
Loan Repayment	(£4,800.00)
Insurance	(£4,480.00)
Accountancy & Audit Fees	(£4,200.00)
General Expenses	(£4,100.00)
Consultants & Contractors	(£3,200.00)
PAYE Payable	(£2,500.00)
Cleaning	(£2,100.00)
Payroll Processing	(£1,890.00)

Category	Amount
Computer Equipment & Software	(£1,795.19)
Advertising & Marketing	(£1,740.00)
Postage & Freight	(£1,709.00)
Rent	(£1,200.00)
Utilities	(£1,055.00)
Office Supplies	(£890.00)
Recruitment	(£750.00)
Subscriptions	(£638.00)
Rates	(£555.00)
Training & Development	(£450.00)
Travel	(£353.50)
Entertainment & Hospitality	(£219.39)
Total Expenses	(£67,725.08)

Net Loss	£23,025.08

Overview

On a cash basis the period shows a deficit, driven by financing and tax settlements rather than by trading. Once the credit drawdown, the grant and the HMRC payments are set aside, the underlying picture is a small practice covering its running costs with limited headroom.

Income Commentary

Sales come from one client settlement and other revenue from a grant, so the income line is lumpy by construction. Neither item recurs on a monthly cycle, and the loan receipt sits in the income total only because the categoriser places it there; it is financing and should be reclassified.

Expense Commentary

Wages and the employer NIC and PAYE settlements dominate, followed by legal, accountancy and audit fees that are seasonal. Software, insurance, premises and travel make up a stable base. Two payments coded to general expenses and one contractor invoice await reviewer confirmation.

Outlook

The next quarter should carry lower professional fees and no audit charge. The main risks are the timing of client receipts against fixed payroll and HMRC dates, and the repayment profile of the facility. A monthly billing rhythm would remove most of the volatility seen here.